

HOW DO AIR AND WATER FIND COMMON GROUND?

THEY BOTH BENEFIT FROM THE WORK
OF DUCKS UNLIMITED.

There's an incidental benefit from Ducks Unlimited's wetland and waterfowl conservation work. It means we can all take a deep breath of clean, fresh air and toast our glasses to pure water. You see, wetlands act as natural water filters and reduce the effects of flooding. The plants we protect for waterfowl store carbon to help keep the air clean. And these habitats are also a source for fishing, hunting and recreation.

In the end, people and wildlife find that they too have something in common—a better place to live. To find out more go to www.ducks.org/benefit
